

3rd Sunday of Easter

Easter is not simply a day to celebrate our Lord's Resurrection, but a season that lasts 50 days and invites us to enter into the fullness of God's mystery. We put our faith in a Higher Power that has been raised from the dead, glorified, and resurrected. This has nothing to do with ghosts, fantasies, mythology, wish-fulfillment, or disembodied spirits. It is much more than an abstraction of good will, kindness, and respect.

Our efforts to seek recovery from addiction and other unhealthy attachments require engagement with more than a ghost. Like the disciples encountering Jesus after the Resurrection, we get support from God who dwells among us today. We get a personal encounter with Christ by relying on others, the body of Christ living and breathing in the world. We get direct contact with our Lord through the sacraments that heal and nourish us.

We have an Advocate above, continually knitting the fabric of heaven and earth together. In recovery, we rely on the body of Christ to turn away from our compulsiveness and devote ourselves to spiritual progress. Somewhere along the way, we begin to truly love God with all our heart, mind, and soul.

As an Easter people, we rejoice in our risen Lord but shall not forget the pain and sacrifice experienced by Jesus for the sake of our own resurrection and freedom from death. By rebelling against our unclean desires, one day or moment at a time, we may acknowledge the suffering that it brings—oftentimes in the form of mental, emotional, and spiritual anguish.

In many cases, we have conditioned ourselves to avoid small moments of suffering by acting out or reaching for our “drug” of choice. Addiction forms when that conditioning trumps the personal choices that we have, making our lives unmanageable and diminishing our ability to love God, ourselves, or our neighbor. Acting against the grain of our addictive impulses is a difficult but necessary part of trusting that God will restore us to sanity.

We can see this transformation take place in the lives of the disciples, particularly noting the new life within them after the resurrection of our Lord. Peter wanted a Christ without the cross and denied him three times before his death. We will see Peter awakened to the will of God as we journey with the apostles throughout the Easter Season. His own faith helped convert thousands in just one day.

At the cusp of his awakening, Peter has an amends to make:

When they had finished breakfast, Jesus said to Simon Peter,

"Simon, son of John, do you love me more than these?"

Simon Peter answered him, "Yes, Lord, you know that I love you."

Jesus said to him, "Feed my lambs."

He then said to Simon Peter a second time,

"Simon, son of John, do you love me?" Simon Peter answered him, "Yes, Lord, you know that I love you."

Jesus said to him, "Tend my sheep."

Jesus said to him the third time,

"Simon, son of John, do you love me?"

Peter was distressed that Jesus had said to him a third time,

"Do you love me?" and he said to him,

"Lord, you know everything; you know that I love you."

Jesus said to him, "Feed my sheep."

We see the fruit of Peter's recovery when he is face-to-face with the same authorities who had previously frightened him to betray Jesus. Emboldened by a second chance to love and serve his Lord, Peter accepts his mission and shares the good news with others, regardless of the cost.

"We must obey God rather than men," Peter proclaims. By choosing to face the truth and accepting the path ahead of us, we are given a similar opportunity to tend the flock of Jesus and align ourselves with God's will.

- What types of addictive impulses and urges have you overcome as part of your recovery journey?

- Are you having a hard time accepting the truth about something going on in your life?
 - What actions can you take in the next 24 hours to make progress toward acceptance?

Invest in Healing

Support Catholic in Recovery and deliver hope to individuals and families impacted by addiction

- Faith, fellowship, and freedom made possible through expanded resources for individuals and communities
- Monthly donors enjoy access to our Advocate's Circle:
 - free copy of The Twelve Steps and the Sacraments
 - weekly exclusive video reflections on faith and recovery delivered to your inbox
- Get started today at catholicinrecovery.com/donate

Sunday Mass Readings This Week

1st Reading: Acts 2:14, 22-33

Responsorial Psalm: Psalm 16:1-2, 5, 7-8, 9-10, 11

2nd Reading: 1 Peter 1:17-21

Gospel: Luke 24:13-35